SINGULAR VINEYARD

DOCa Rioja

Vine, soil and climate. The greatest expression of our Singular Vineyard

Vine, soil, climate. Three factors which when combined to perfection make a particular vineyard and the wines which come from it a true example of just how nature hides its rich bounty.

The variety could be no other than Mazuelo. A grape which Ondarre use in all their wines and which is deeply rooted in Viana's winemaking history and its vineyards. A grape which adapts perfectly to the poor, shallow, hard clay-loam soils of La Escaleruela, which seemed to resist anything growing in them.

And the final link, a transitional climate with cold winters and dry summers and a big temperature break between day and night time, to add even more uncertainty to the noble art of winemaking.

Because wine springs from the vineyard, but it is made in the wine cellar. A place where the hand of man must use all the means at his disposal – technique, intuition and passion- to preserve what nature has given him, not without some difficulty.

Vine, soil, climate. Three interwoven elements, with centuries of dialogue between them, with humans as their witness. And little by little, with the passing of time, they have shaped this Singular Vineyard. Today we place into your hands its greatest expression.
